New CineSat website

2018-08-15

The CineSat product website has been migrated into a Wiki structure.

This will allow for modern website features and easier and more frequent updates of all information related to CineSat. The CineSat website now uses the same Wiki software, styles, and features as all other GEPARD web sites. As of today, about 20% of the CineSat web pages have been moved to the new platform. More pages will become available in the next weeks without further notice. The early release of the new platform was necessary due to data privacy and security issues.

See CineSat Website

All News